Julian Trollor leads the National Centre of Excellence in Intellectual Disability Health.

We will say the Centre for short.

Julian knows he has an important job to lead his team.

His team makes sure people with intellectual disability get health care that is right for them.

In the video Julian talks about the most important work the Centre will do.

They will do things like

- Be a leader for the health of people with intellectual disability.
- Say what research we need about intellectual disability health
- Make health services better for people with intellectual disability
- Help people with intellectual disability find the right health services.

Julian also talks about 2 things that are important for the Centre to do.

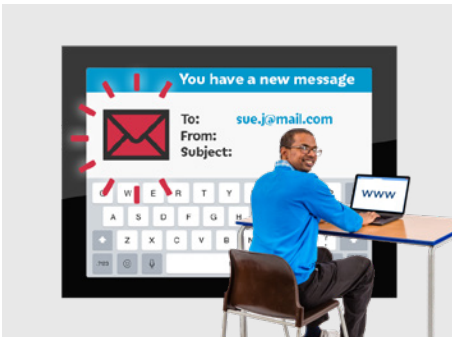

They want to make sure people with intellectual disability are leaders at the Centre.

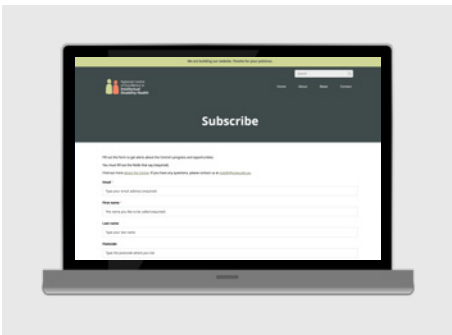

That means people with intellectual disability should be part of everything the Centre does.

The Centre also wants First Nations people to be part of their work.
